ABOUT ME

I am currently working on improving my skills in frontend development and aiming to steer my career in this field in the future. I have developed many web projects and coded the designs for all of them myself. For the backend of my projects, I used PHP PDO.

I have also created my own websites and written systems that can generate passive income. In my career, I aim to be a part of the development of a software in the web industry that caters to a large audience.

MY MOTIVATION SOURCE

We often think about the results before even starting something we want to do. That's why we begin to give up on our goals before even taking a step towards them. In fact, the biggest step to achieving what we want is to not be afraid of the results and to be confident. That's why I start moving towards my goals with confidence using the phrase 'A bold attempt is half success'.

NOTE

I would like to state that I have prepared my resume using a CV creation and customization system that I have developed myself 😊
